Re: Sapphire Series Inks

Object: Pad Printing inks

Dear Customer,

we confirm that the products in object are manufactured with free-heavy metals raw materials, that is they comply with the requirements of the EN 71 regulation, third part, December 1994 edition and following modifications (A1 update, April 2000 + correction AC:2000 + correction AC:2002).

Since this product is used to print on toys, the requirements above mentioned are met only if inks are processed correctly, no contaminations occurs and no unsuitable additives are used. However, since inks are technical products, we cannot exclude with absolute certainty that contaminations in minimum traces are contained.

All the above mentioned is referred only to the inks chemical composition (in closed cans). Please find herewith enclosed the limit of heavy metals allowed according to En 71-3.

The inks are not suitable for food contact.

Best regards.
